MEGARGEE PAINTINGS ARE ATTACHED FOR JUDGMENT

Deputy Will Guard Them Throughout
Remainder of State Fair.

For a few minutes yesterday it looked as though the art exhibit at the state fair was about to receive a decided blow. A deputy sheriff, armed with the necessary papers, stepped in and attached five paintings, one of which, "The Desert Trail," had been awarded a blue ribbon, the deputy also filed garnishee proceedings against prize moneys which may be awarded to Megargee. The filing of the attachment and garnishee was made by Attorney

Fred B. Townsend, representing Mrs. Anna L. Megargee, and is to recover on a judgment rendered by Judge Stanford in the superior court on October 20, in the sum of $115, representing attorney fees, costs and one month's maintenance for the Megargee's little boy. Incidental to awarding costs and attorney's fees the court handed down a decree granting Mrs. Megargee an absolute divorce. Application for divorce had been made on the grounds of non-support and desertion, and judgment was rendered by default. Since the judgment of the court was rendered, Attorney Townsend has been endeavoring to find something upon which to recover. Announcement that Megargee would have an exhibit at the fair, gave him the opportunity he sought.

A DOUGLAS TOURIST—J. O. Ambler of Douglas was in Phoenix for a couple of hours yesterday afternoon, "gassing" with his old friend Hotchkiss at the Overland garage. Ambler has been on a two thousand mile tour in an Overland roadster, including a visit to the big fair at Frisco. He reports a most satisfactory experience with his car.

THE HILL CIDER CASE MAY END TODAY

It is Expected It Will Go to the Jury at Noon Today.

The case of the state against Walter Hill and P. W. Duncan, alleged to have sold intoxicating liquor, that is, cider, will be completed today, after occupying the attention of the court since last Thursday.

Although practically all county offices have closed at noon on account of the state fair, Judge Stanford has not adjourned court, and during the long afternoons the case has gone over from day to day.

There were few developments yesterday. Mr. Hill and Mr. Duncan were both on the stand, but their evidence brought no new phase to the situation. Employees of the Hill concern testified that they had seen I. E. Troutner pour water in cider. After purchasing it from the establishment. Several well known men who have had business dealings with Mr. Hill, and others prominent in church affairs were character witnesses. They testified to Mr. Hill's good character and his connection with the church.

The case will be continued at nine o'clock this morning.

NAVY LEAGUE CAMPAIGN IS LAUNCHED AT BIG BANQUET

Col. Pendleton, Col. Greenway and Carl Hayden Address Members of the Navy League on Preparation Against War

The first gun for an extensive Navy league campaign was fired last night at a dinner given at the Arizona club. Prominent men of all political parties and occupations from every section of the state listened to inspiring talks by Colonel Joseph H. Pendleton, commander of the United States marines at San Diego; Congressman Carl Hayden and John C. Greenway of Bisbee.

After a brief introduction by the chairman of the dinner committee, George J. Stoneman, Captain Greenway took the chair as toastmaster. The internal troubles and social injustices of the nation were mentioned as questions that needed a great deal of attention in the future. But it was then pointed out that the chief question before the United States today was not so much future progress but the present condition of unpreparedness. Mr. Greenway then stated that foreign nations considered America as Christian Jews who would not fight under any circumstances. "But the silver lining that brightens the cloud that overhangs our nation is our national resources; we have money with which to build an efficient navy for defensive protection. Those who love their country as they should, ought not hesitate a moment to start this campaign to educate the people for the necessity of a more adequate first line of defense."

Colonel Pendleton then gave some very interesting facts and statistics showing how any one of a number of nations could land a force of 200,000 men before the nation could begin to organize. "Our country does not want conquest. We are not in any way a warlike or war-loving people, though the years of '61 to '65 showed there is certainly 'fight in the family.' Should the time come when we find a resort to arms necessary, we will find that military and naval preparedness has been a very inexpensive form of insurance, saving many, many lives and much treasure. The fact of preparedness will never make us aggressive toward or unjust to others, but it may, and doubtless will, encourage others to a decent regard for, and respect for our rights."

Although brief, Representative Hayden's talk was very spicy and to the point. He suggested that there were two ways to invite war: One "by being so well prepared that we would want to go out and conquer other nations; and the other by being so defenseless that other nations would be tempted to attack us, especially at the end of the present war when the United States will have all the wealth and Europe all the soldiers."

"I am for a happy medium, and have always voted for naval and military appropriations that would give our nation a respectable representation among the nations of the world."

At the close of the meeting practically everyone who had not already signed a membership card to the league, did so. Plans were then made to have State Organizer Sael make a trip around the state to organize local sections in all cities. Petitions will be presented which are to be signed whether one cares to join the league or not; it will only be necessary to be in favor of preparedness for preserving peace.

HER PHOTOGRAPH WINS A POSITION

Miss Marguerite Gale.

Here is a new face in moving pictures. Its owner, Miss Marguerite Gale, owes her position to the fact that the director of a big film company saw her picture in a photographer's display window. He was so struck by it that he hunted up Miss Gale and induced her to try her luck in the silent drama. She will make her first appearance in "How Molly Made Good," the novel six-reel film in which twelve of America's most famous stars are featured.
